A BRIEF HISTORY

Sitting proudly at the top of byres road in the heart of Glasgow's West End, Oran Mor is an infamous entertainment establishment with a rich history dating back to its original construction in 1862 by J.J. Stevenson (Campbell, Douglas & Stevenson).

Originally founded as the Kelvinside Free Church, a parish church of the Free Church of Scotland, the building still retains many of its Neo-Classical architecture features to this day, such as the spire of the church, described as an Italian Gothic Pyramid, and the cast iron columns contained in the main body of the church that elegantly reach and create an arcade capped by beautiful but simple arches.

After being de-sanctified in 1978 and left derelict and abandoned for years, However, a group led by entrepreneur Colin Beattie intervened and began major refurbishments on the building in 2002. Colin Beattie has since remained the owner of the establishment to the current day and was responsible for the building finally being named Òran Mór, ever appropriate as the Gaelic translation of "Great Melody of Life", or "Big Song" as it opened as an arts and leisure centre in 2004 and has been host to a variety of events including comedy nights, cabaret, live music and the hugely successful A Play, A Pie and A Pint series.
